

The Accidental Pervert Will Arouse Your Socks Off

by MICHAEL MUSTO

May 2, 2012

At a taping of Barry Z's talk show recently, I ran into Andrew Goffman, writer/star of the long-running The Accidental Pervert.

On the show, Goffman said his one-man play “will make you laugh, and it’ll make you hard.”

Chimed in Barry, “It’s the only show that gives the audience a standing ovation!”

During a commercial break, Goffman told me more:

“When I was 10, I discovered my dad’s porno tapes and became obsessed with them.

Want more?

Go see the show.

As one of the reviews on the site explained:

“What was secretly done behind closed doors, cuddled up on a ratty upholstered La-Z-Boy in front of a vintage television set . . . surrounded by wads of tissues while his parents were not around, Andrew Goffman is now performing live, in front of a voyeuristic audience.”

Raved another critic, Pervert is “cute in a disgusting sort of way.”